Chair: Marla L. Weitzman

Clara-Christina Adame de Heu, Amy Clark, Sheila D. Rhea, Anne Gilfoil, Amelia J. Harris, Gillian Huang-Tiller, Susana Liso, Gretchen Martin, Michael E. O'Donnell, Cynthia Newlon, Rachel Tighe, Kenneth Tiller, Jessica Williams, Witold Wolny, Roman Zylawy

The Department of Language and Literature offers majors in English Literature, Communication, French, and Spanish leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree. Majors are offered in Foreign Studies with a concentration in French, German or Spanish. The department offers minors in Communication, English, French, German, and Spanish.

APPLICATION PROCESS

Those who wish to earn the Bachelor of Arts degree in Language and Literature must complete the following procedure:

1. Submit to department chair a degree application and a copy of the student's degree audit report. In order to be accepted into the department majors, students must have a 2.0 GPA overall and a 2.3 GPA in courses taken for the major. To be considered, students must have completed 9 hours of courses labeled 300 or above (for English or Communication majors) and 9 hours of courses labeled 201 and above (for French, Spanish and Foreign Studies majors.)
2. The student will be advised in writing of the department's decision on the application to major. Upon acceptance, the student will be assigned an advisor to assist in developing a schedule of courses to complete the major.
3. This procedure generally takes place by the first semester of the student's junior year to ensure that the student has completed the general education requirements, and to provide time to complete the major requirements in a reasonable fashion.

From time to time, the department will review the progress of the student. The student's advisor shall inform the student about the conclusions of the departmental review.

ENGLISH PLACEMENT

Because effective writing is directly connected to successful completion of a college degree, freshmen entering the College must register for the freshman English course appropriate to their writing abilities. Placement in freshman English courses is determined by the following:

LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE

1. The student's SAT or ACT scores;
2. The student's high school record;
3. The student's score on the Advanced Placement Program.

Entering freshmen will initially be placed according to the above criteria. However, they will also be required to write an essay on the first day of class. After reading the essay and reviewing the student's scores, the department will place the student according to the following norms:

English 099: a course of study geared to remedy deficiencies indicated by the written sample and/or where the student's SAT score is less than 400 Verbal (16 ACT). Students placed in English 099 must successfully complete the course before they may register for English 101. Unless exempted by the Registrar, the student may repeat English 099 once. The student may gain credit for the course by examination (see page 90).

English 101-102: These are the standard English freshman writing courses. Placement in English 101 is by way of submitting an acceptable writing sample on the first day of class with the attendant SAT scores above 400 verbal and an appropriate high school record. The student must complete English 101-102 in semester sequence.

English 103H: To provide the exceptionally well prepared student the opportunity to write at the advanced level, the department offers English 103 Honors. Placement in English 103H shall be on the basis of high school record, an outstanding writing sample on the first day of class and SAT verbal scores of 500 or above. Students who score 3 or 4 on the Advanced Placement Examination may also be placed in English 103H. Successful completion of English 103H with a grade of C- shall satisfy the general education requirement and the student will be awarded 6 hours of credit toward graduation. Students who score a 5 on the Advanced Placement Examination may be exempted from both English 101-102; such students will also be awarded 6 hours of credit in English toward graduation.

Because the department concludes that successful completion of Freshman English is fundamental to any advanced study in English, it requires that the student shall have successfully completed this requirement before any student may register for any advanced English course, 200 or above. Should a student attempt an advanced course before completion of the freshman requirement, the student will not receive credit for the upper level English course. (Where appropriate, the Freshman English requirement includes both English 103H or exemption by Advanced Placement scores.)

FOREIGN LANGUAGE PLACEMENT

Advanced placement in foreign language also will be granted on the basis of scores on the Advanced Placement Examination, departmental examinations, and the student's level of secondary school work in foreign language.

All students who have had previous experience with a foreign language must take the departmentally sponsored placement tests in order to obtain as much credit as possible for their previous language experiences.

French 101-102, German 101-102, and Spanish 101-102: These are the standard foreign language courses that may be used to satisfy the general education requirement in language. Placement in 101 of a foreign language course is automatic for students who have not taken the placement test and who have little or no preparation in foreign language. Placement in 102 or higher in foreign language may be obtained by departmental placement examination.

A student with three years or more of high school language with a "B" average or better may not take the 101 course of a foreign language without departmental approval. Students with this background should enroll in the 103H or 102 course in the language of their preparation.

French 103H and Spanish 103H: To provide the exceptionally well prepared student the opportunity to work at an advanced level, the department offers French 103H and Spanish 103H. Students who have a combined SAT score of 950 and a "B" average in their high school French or Spanish classes, and have completed three or more years of the high school language may be placed in either French 103H or Spanish 103H without taking a placement test. Successful completion of French 103H or Spanish 103H with a grade of "C-" shall satisfy the general education requirement and the student will be awarded 6 hours of credit toward graduation.

HONORS

The Department of Language and Literature is pleased to award graduation with honors to distinguished students. To earn honors in English and Communication the student shall:

1. Maintain a 3.50 cumulative grade point average in courses taken on campus and courses transferred to UVA-Wise;

LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE

2. Be nominated for honors by the student's departmental advisor and at least one other member of the department;
3. Submit a research paper in COMM/ENGL 491-492 (Senior Seminars) that is deemed to be distinguished by at least three members of the Department of Language and Literature.

BACHELOR OF ARTS IN ENGLISH MAJOR REQUIREMENTS

1. Those who wish to major in English must complete the formal application process as listed above (see paragraphs 1-3).
2. Those majoring in English must achieve and maintain a cumulative grade point average of at least 2.01 in all courses in the major.
3. Students must complete 12 hours of foreign language and literature. Six hours of this requirement will be met by the general education foreign language requirement. The department strongly urges that the remaining 6 hours of the foreign language requirement be courses in a foreign language. With prior Department approval, however, the student may opt to complete this requirement by taking ENGL 305-306 or courses in literature in translation offered by the foreign language faculty. To be allowed this option, the student must have a legitimate reason and must receive permission from the department chair before taking ENGL 305-306.
4. The student shall select a major in Literature or Communication.
5. Each student must compile a portfolio of five papers written for English literature or communication classes during his or her study at UVa-Wise. This portfolio will be kept in the department chair's office.
6. Each senior must schedule and complete an exit interview with English literature or communication faculty prior to graduation.

MAJOR IN ENGLISH LITERATURE

The Major in English Literature is particularly appropriate for students who wish to pursue studies in literature at the graduate level, teach English at the secondary level, attend law school or prepare for theological studies. Combined with other appropriate studies, the major in literature is excellent preparation for the fields of medicine and business. Students will complete the following course of studies:

MINOR REQUIREMENTS

A minor includes at least 18 semester hours, 12 of which must be in courses at the 300-level or above. Courses must be selected in consultation with the department.

For the minor in English, students must complete a 400-level course, and ENGL 395, Literary Criticism. Students must also complete 12 additional semester hours of literature selected from courses numbered 302 or above.

For the minor in communication, students will complete 18 semester hours of COMM courses, 12 of which must be in courses at the 300-level or above. A student may use no more than 3 semester hours of cooperative education, internship or independent study to satisfy requirements for the minor.

LICENSURE FOR TEACHING ENGLISH

Students who wish to pursue the Virginia College Professional Certificate with endorsement to teach English in secondary grades 6-12 must complete general education courses and courses for the English major, professional studies courses, the teaching internship, and meet requirements for admission and retention in the UVa-Wise Teacher Education Program (TEP). Students must have a GPA of at least 3.0 in 300-level or above courses in the major to receive a departmental recommendation to the TEP.

Successful candidates for this program must complete 36 hours of courses as follows: EDUC 340 (students who are seeking licensure in Pre-K-6 may substitute EDUC 361), COMM 200, EDUC 474, EDUC 351, 358, 369, 408, 409, and 482 (in the fall semester of the student's final year), and EDUC 491 (in the spring semester of the student's final year).

Changing state requirements may alter this course list. The student should check with the Director of Teacher Education on a regular basis.

LICENSURE FOR TEACHING JOURNALISM, SPEECH OR THEATRE ARTS

Licensure in journalism, speech, or theatre arts may be added to basic licensure in English by completing the appropriate coursework.

JOURNALISM. Licensure to teach journalism may be obtained by completing 15 hours of COMM courses, to include at least two of the following: COMM 310, COMM 311 or COMM 312, in addition to the prescribed program for English certification.

SPEECH. Licensure to teach speech may be added to the basic licensure in English by taking 15 hours of Communication courses, to include COMM 100, COMM 200, and COMM 330.

THEATRE ARTS. Licensure to teach theatre arts may be added to the basic licensure in English by taking 15 hours of theatre courses including THTR 100, or THTR 101, and a minimum of two hours of THTR 250.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE MAJORS, FOREIGN STUDIES MAJOR, MINORS AND CERTIFICATION

FOREIGN LANGUAGES MAJOR

A major in Spanish, French or Foreign Studies can be earned through the Liberal Arts and Sciences degree program. A minor in foreign languages can be earned in French, Spanish, or German. The following are requirements for all foreign language and Foreign Studies majors:

GERMAN: Eighteen hours of German courses, 12 hours selected from GERM 300 or above.

LICENSURE FOR TEACHING A FOREIGN LANGUAGE IN Pre-K-12

Students who wish to pursue certification to teach a foreign language at the Pre-K-12 level must meet the requirements for admission and retention in the Teacher Education Program. In addition to the required courses in foreign language, the student must take the professional studies requirements for secondary grades 6-12. Students must have a GPA of at least 3.0 in 300-level or above courses in the major to receive departmental recommendation to the Teacher Education Program.

The applicant seeking an endorsement in a modern foreign language for Pre-K-12 shall complete a major or its equivalent in a modern foreign language, including a minimum of 24 semester hours of language course work above the intermediate level. Endorsement in a second foreign language may be obtained with 24 semester hours of course work above the intermediate level.

A. Option One.

First endorsement: 24 semester hours. Experiences shall include course work in advanced grammar and composition, conversation, culture and civilization, and literature.

B. Option Two.

Added endorsement in a second modern foreign language: 24 semester hours. Experiences shall include course work in advanced grammar and composition, conversation, culture and civilization, and literature.

Specific content courses required for teacher certification in French include FREN 101 or 111, FREN 102 or 112, or FREN 103H, FREN 201, and FREN 202. Twenty-four hours of upper-division courses must include FREN 301, FREN 321, FREN 415, plus 15 semester hours of upper-division courses in French literature, language or civilization.

Specific content courses required for teacher certification in Spanish include SPAN 101 or 111, SPAN 102 or 112, or SPAN 103H, SPAN 201, and SPAN 202. Twenty-four hours of upper-division courses must include SPAN 301, SPAN 321, SPAN 401, and SPAN 415, plus any 15 semester hours of upper-division course work in Spanish literature and history.

Specific content courses required for teacher certification in German include GERM 101 or 111, GERM 102 or 112, GERM 201 and GERM 202. Twenty-four hours of upper-division courses must include GERM 301, GERM 321, GERM 415, plus any 15 semester hours of upper-division course work in German literature or language.

COURSES IN COMMUNICATION

COMM 100: Public Speaking (3)

This course helps students develop the basic skills necessary for speechmaking. Special emphasis is placed on learning how to organize, research, and support arguments; developing critical listening skills; and developing increased confidence and competence in oral presentations.

COMM 200: Oral Interpretation (3)

This course helps students develop oral presentation skills through the reading of poetry, prose, and dramatic dialogue to improve vocal quality, projection, and enunciation for teaching, for the stage, or for other professional use.

COMM 210: Publishing Practicum (1)

Supervised practical experience contributing to the publishing processes of the print and/or online editions of two journalistic student publications (i.e., The Highland Cavalier newspaper and The Outpost yearbook). With approval from the instructor, course participants may focus their contributions in one or more of the following areas: reporting and writing, editing, photography, graphic design, advertising sales, and marketing. Students receive grades based on the quantity and quality of their contributions to these publications as well as their ability to consistently meet deadlines.

COMM 300: Advanced Public Speaking (3)

Prerequisite: COMM 100 or permission of instructor

This course focuses on more complex speaking tasks such as impromptu speaking, presenting formal business proposals, and making persuasive appeals. Students are expected to have already overcome basic speech anxiety and have a working knowledge of the basics of public speaking.

LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE

COMM 310: Introduction to Journalism and Media Writing (3)

Provides course participants with a solid understanding of how to gather factual material from a wide range of sources and combine it into a clear, coherent, and complete news article. Students learn to report and write hard news stories and several variations thereof. Topics include backgrounding, interviewing, inverted pyramid style, lead construction, headline construction, style and stylebooks, beat reporting, media law, media ethics, and introductory publication design. In addition, students explore differences between print, online, and broadcast journalism and conduct an introductory investigation into non-journalistic forms of media writing for radio, television, and film.

COMM 311: Advanced Print Journalism (3)

Prerequisite: COMM 310 or permission of instructor

Advanced training in reporting and writing for print media with primary emphases on feature writing, opinion writing, copyediting, and fact-checking for magazines and newspapers. Topics include basic and advanced techniques of feature writing, in-depth personality profiles, essay writing, travel writing, opinion and editorial writing, and advanced reviewing techniques. Course participants also receive advanced training in publication editing and design and conduct a thorough investigation of influences on various types of journalistic message content.

COMM 312: Advanced Writing for Radio-Television-Film (3)

Prerequisite: COMM 310 or permission of instructor

Advanced training in writing journalistic, documentary, and dramatic creations for radio, television, and film. Early meetings enable course participants to prepare a range of news and nonfiction offerings for radio and television. Later meetings teach students to write a feature-length dramatic screenplay for television or film, from concept generation to step outline, treatment, and their own individual acts. Course participants receive feedback on their efforts from the instructor and their peers at every step along the way. They learn the importance of rewriting, achieve critical understanding of devices used regularly by media professionals, and explore social and ethical responsibilities associated with broadcast media writing in the (post)modern age.

COMM 320: Media Studies (3)

An introductory investigation into the history, values, processes, and effects of American mass media, with particular emphasis on film and television offerings and their relationships to print and online media forms. Course participants explore, from a cultural studies perspective, phenomena associated with the production, dissemination, and reception of media messages and their impact on individuals, institutions, and cultures. Film and television screenings comprise an essential component of this course.

COMM 321: Film Analysis (3)

Prerequisite: COMM 320 or permission of instructor

An overview of various approaches to film analysis and sophisticated film criticism, all of them defined by their careful attention to the cinematic text. Course participants acquire extensive experience in the close analysis of film as an expressive medium. Early course meetings are devoted to in-depth examination of the elements of film form and style (including narrative and stylistic elements, motifs, temporal order and duration, mise-en-scene, cinematography, editing, sound, authorship, and genre), providing students with the necessary terminology and analytical skills to effectively analyze films. Later meetings focus on the representational and ideological strategies of various films and the likely social ramifications of those strategies. Film screenings comprise an essential component of this course.

COMM 322: Film and Video Production Techniques (3)

Prerequisite: THTR 250 or permission of instructor

Provides course participants with advanced study of the uses of video as an artistic medium and advanced experience in the preparation, shooting, and editing of video field projects in film style form. Emphasis is placed on effective incorporation and application of technical and theoretical principles, relevant aesthetic and narrative approaches, and traditional storytelling techniques.

COMM 324: Introduction to Film for Non-majors (3)

Prerequisite: ENGL 101/102 or ENGL 103

A study of world film history in its connections to aesthetics, ideology, literature, culture and the arts. The interdisciplinary nature of film will be particularly explored in its narrative, visual and psychological dimensions.

COMM 325: Film Stardom (3)

This course explores the phenomenon of film stardom past and present, as addressed in theoretical and popular writings and fostered in cinematic offerings of various decades and genres. Course topics include cinematic spectatorship (mainstream and otherwise), cinematic star personas, cinematic star vehicles, genre and stardom, identification and stardom, performing femininity, and performing masculinity.

LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE

COMM 327: Topics in Film History (3)

A study of selected topics pertaining to the historical development of film in the United States and around the world. Specific content will vary by semester and may include History of American Film, History of World Film, and/or History of Silent Cinema, among other topics.

COMM 330: Interpersonal Communication (3)

This course provides students with a theory-based examination of one-on-one communication starting with the impact of self-concept and perception through communication in various relationships.

COMM 340: Business and Professional Communication (3)

Explores techniques of effective written and verbal communication as they pertain to business and professional settings. Course participants form their own "companies" for the semester and complete a range of assignments stemming naturally from such an organizational environment. Topics include advertising history and theory, public relations history and theory, diffusion theory, media training, business messages, report writing, resume writing, and interviewing strategies. The guiding belief underlying the overall course design is that a fulfilling college course not only exposes students to essential content, but that it also challenges them to think critically, apply theory, solve typical problems, develop innovative strategies, and effectively evaluate options.

COMM 350: Communication Theory (3)

Prerequisite: COMM 330 AND AJUS/PSYC/SOCI 303 or permission of instructor

This course provides students with a detailed examination of the theories and rules that govern communication interactions. The course will cover the dominant paradigms that govern the development of communication theory and the most prominent theories in communication research.

COMM 387,388: Cooperative Education Project I (1-6)

Supervised field experience in journalism, broadcasting, public relations, or advertising. Ordinarily taken in the junior year.

COMM 390: Internship (1-6)

COMM 396: Special Topics in Communication (3-6)

COMM 400: Persuasion (3)

Prerequisite: AJUS/PSYC/SOCI 303 or permission of instructor

This course provides students with an advanced examination of the components of effective persuasion. This writing-intensive course will examine persuasion in historical, mass media, and interpersonal contexts.

COMM 420: Screen Media Theory and Criticism (3)

Prerequisite: COMM 320 or permission of instructor

COURSES IN ENGLISH

ENGL 099: Basic Skills (3)

Offered for credit/no credit. Designed for students who need remediation in speaking and writing standard English, this course integrates work in grammar, organization, spelling, and vocabulary enrichment with specific spoken and written assignments ranging from sentence construction to paragraph development and the creation of essays of substantial length. Emphasis is on mechanical correctness and rhetorical development. Classroom work is supplemented and individual problems addressed by laboratory assignment using computer software.

ENGL 101-102: Composition (6)

Prerequisite: passing grade on the proficiency examination or successful completion of specified portions of Speech and Writing Laboratory; ENGL 101 is prerequisite to ENGL 102.

Expository writing, ranging from single paragraph to essays of some length and complexity; study of the logical, rhetorical, and linguistic structures of expository prose; the methods and conventions of preparing research papers; and argumentation. Full-time students who have not completed ENGL 101-102 or the equivalent must enroll in the appropriate course in that sequence.

ENGL 103H: Composition (3)

Prerequisite: Advanced Placement

After a rapid survey of the modes of expository writing, this course emphasizes analytical and argumentative composition with topics drawn from selected major works of American and English literature, as well as world literature in translation. In a seminar setting, all assignments will emphasize discussion, research and writing of high quality.

Note: All courses 200 and above presume completion of ENGL 101 and 102 or ENGL 103H; credit for upper-level courses in English will not be given unless the student has successfully completed ENGL 101 and 102 or ENGL 103H. A student may take either the 200 or 300 version (but not both) of the courses listed dually below.

ENGL 205: Vocabulary I (2)

Prerequisites: Sophomore status

This course builds vocabulary and reading skills with roots and stems of the English language, practice exercises, and readings that reinforce and promote word-building skills, especially for those who plan on post-graduate work.

ENGL 212/312: Topics in World Literature (3)

Prerequisites: ENGL 101-102

A study of works of foreign literature in translation. Examples include The German Novel, German Short Fiction, The Russian Novel, The Contemporary Novel, The Vampire in Literature and Film, and The Double in Literature. Students seeking upper-level credit for this course will complete compositions or readings in addition to the assignments for ENGL 212.

ENGL 213/313: Topics in American Literature (3)

A study of selected themes in American literature. Students seeking upper-level credit for this course will complete compositions or readings in addition to the assignments for ENGL 213.

ENGL 214/314: Topics in British Literature (3)

A study of selected themes in British literature. Students seeking upper-level credit for this course will complete compositions or readings in addition to the assignments for ENGL 214.

ENGL 300: How to Read Literature (3)

LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE

ENGL 303: African-American Literature (3)

A survey of the prose, poetry and drama of African-American literature including works from the 19th and 20th centuries.

ENGL 304: Literature of the Fantastic (3)

A selection of fantastic literature within the western tradition from the pre-Christian to the modern era.

ENGL 305: The Western Literary Tradition 1 (3)

A survey of western literature from the Hebrews and Greeks through the Renaissance.

ENGL 306: The Western Literary Tradition 2 (3)

A survey of western literature from the Neo-classical period to modernism.

ENGL 307: Arthurian Literature (3)

Prerequisite: ENGL 102 or 103H

The origins of the legend of King Arthur in British and Continental writing and the development of Arthur in literature from the Middle Ages to the present century. Major topics for consideration will include: the origins of the legend; Arthur and the Grail myth; the Arthur in epic and romance; the Lancelot and Guinevere story; Arthurian revivals in the Renaissance, 19th, and 20th centuries; and the quest for the "historical" Arthur.

ENGL 308 : Southern Literature (3)

Prerequisite: ENGL 102 or 103H

This course is designed to offer students a survey of the literature of the American South from the colonial period through the late twentieth century. The main focus will be to provide a general picture of Southern Literature - some of its major themes and writers, as well as its construction as a scholarly field of study. The class will read primarily short stories and novels, but also some poetry, drama, and critical essays, and will examine literature as a reflection of southern culture during that period, attempting to reconstruct the historical and social context(s) in which these works were produced. This course will also examine issues of gender, class, race, and region, as well as aesthetic and thematic techniques.

ENGL 309: Asian American Literature (3)

Prerequisite: ENGL 102 or 103H

This course is designed to introduce students to the major works of Asian American writers. Their artistic achievements over several generations of assimilation, cultural, racial, and generational conflict have conveyed unique ethnic experiences that have enriched, and even changed, our understanding of the reality of modern American life. The course will pay particular attention to Asian American diasporic cultures and identify crises of Asian American communities. Issues for discussion will include: immigrant legacy, Asian American relations to the values and mores of the homeland or Confucian cultures, Asian American stereotypes, the 'model minority' myth, work and the work ethic, family and community, gender and racial tension, and images of Asian American masculinity and femininity. Ultimately, the course will examine the efforts of Asian American writers to give voice to a previously silent people with an ignored and therefore unknown history.

ENGL 310: Readings in Literature (1-2)

The reading of a list of works agreed upon by the student and the department.

ENGL 311: Women in Literature (3)

Prerequisite: ENGL 102 or ENGL 103H

A study of representations of women will focus on transnational and multicultural literature by both male and female writers, with particular attention to the relationship between the traditional roles of women, female stereotypes, and the dilemmas women and women writers have encountered in search of their own identities and places. By juxtaposing male ideas of woman with women's struggles as individual selves, students will examine how a traditionally male-centered and masculinist culture and literature could be re-envisioned.
